Coleman Street Investments

Growth Portfolio

31 December 2022

Class A Accumulation Shares, GBP

Investment objective

To seek a combination of long-term capital appreciation and income, but with a focus on growth, with a medium risk investment profile.

Benchmark

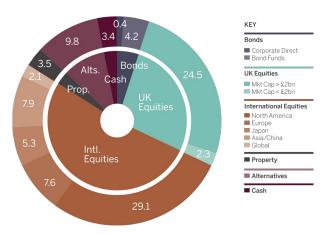

The Fund is benchmarked against the MSCI PIMFA Growth Index (Total Return) and will take active positions relative to this index on both asset allocation and stock selection. The Fund's broad asset allocation (split by equities, fixed income and alternatives) will typically be restricted to a range, relative to the benchmark, set by the CSI Investment Committee.

Investment policy

In order to achieve its objective, the Fund will invest principally in a diversified portfolio of different asset classes such as equities, equity linked securities (including warrants and convertible securities), fixed and floating rate debt securities, index linked bonds, cash and cash equivalents. Equities will be the dominant asset class.

The equity part of the Fund's portfolio will contain primarily securities from the leading UK companies (FTSE 350) or their equivalents from overseas markets. The equity part of the portfolio may also consist of, but to a proportionately lesser extent, the securities of smaller companies. The bond part of the Fund's portfolio will contain mainly bonds such as sovereign debt or securities guaranteed by governments and corporate debt with the focus being on medium to high credit quality. The bond part of the portfolio may also consist of, but to a proportionately lesser extent, lower quality bonds.

Fund manager commentary

During the fourth quarter, the Fund returned 4.2% against the PIMFA Growth Index that returned 4.1%. Relative outperformance was driven by stock selection in International Equities.

After a challenging year, it is pleasing to be able to report a strong performance in the fourth quarter, both on a relative and an absolute basis, in the CSI funds. A combination of a reduction in the rate of growth in global inflation, the dramatic end to China's zero-Covid policy and a string of surprisingly positive earnings updates provided reason for optimism amongst mostly-sceptical investors.

Included within that optimism were a number of retail businesses who had performed poorly but for which we felt opportunities had presented themselves to add to positions. The quarter saw impressive returns for fellow shareholders in LVMH (+11.4%), Burberry (+12.3%), Next (+20.9%), Nike (+40.8%) and Games Workshop (+47.8%) and we are pleased to report having added to our positions in these businesses at lower prices. Our perseverance amongst gloomy media headlines appears to have received some support (or at least some respite); however even after an exceptional quarter in the share price of some of these high quality franchises, we continue to look forward with great optimism.

Perseverance in investment however does not always pay off and during the quarter we chose to move on from Strix; a business held within the funds for a little under 18 months – a very brief stay on our preferred 'til death do us part' time horizon. During that period, we were disappointed with the capital allocation and the communication from the management team who we felt often, and increasingly so, over-promised and under-delivered. We continue to believe that the core kettle controls product offering in Strix offers attractive cash flow and characteristics but our confidence and trust in management as custodians of that fortunate position has diminished – we believe that the investment case had changed. We recycled the majority of the capital into Autotrader – another UK business with a monopolistic core offering but with a much greater record on nurturing, allocating and distributing their, and ultimately our, capital.

Whilst our hope is to take advantage of the often short term swings in markets through a long term approach to investment in businesses, we believe that there are times when it is appropriate to move on, give up or quit. Our sale criteria remains unchanged from that described in our June 2021 commentary where we wrote that; we follow the philosophy on when to sell that Philip Fisher sets out in his seminal book, 'Common Stocks and Uncommon Profits'. In it he says that, "there are three reasons and three reasons only, for the sale of any common stock...when a mistake has been made...[adverse] changes resulting from the passage of time...to switch into a situation with seemingly better prospects." It is this approach that led to us buying more of LVMH, Burberry, Next, Nike and Games Workshop and selling our holding in Strix.
